NEVER SAY FAIL.

Keep pushing—'tis wiser
Than sitting aside,
And dreaming and sighing
And waiting the tide.
In life's earnest battle
They only prevail
Who daily march onward
And never say fail!

With an eye ever open,
A tongue that's not dumb,
And a heart that will never
To sorrow succumb,
You'll battle and conquer,
Though thousands assail;
How strong and how mighty
Who never say fail!

The spirit of angels
Is active I know,
As higher and higher
In glory they go;
Methinks on bright pinions
From heaven they sail,
To cheer and encourage
Who never say fail!

Ahead, then, keep pushing,
And elbow your way,
Unheeding the envious,
All asses that bray;
All obstacles vanish,
All enemies quail,
In the might of their wisdom
Who never say fail!

In life's rosy morning,
In manhood's fair pride,
Let this be the motto
Your footsteps to guide;
In storm and in sunshine,
Whatever assail,
We'll onward and conquer,
And never say fail!

THE MOUTH.—the mouth is symbolical of the sensuous qualities of man. This is its primary signification especially of its lower part, because it is the head piece of the digestive organs. It is the gateway of the stomach, that labratory of nature, in which goes on the process of converting fluids and solids into man, mental as well as physical. But the mouth has also a higher meaning. Its upper part is connected with the physical character, as its lower with the corporeal nature. Hence the upper lip should extend beyond and govern the lower. A short upper lip, deeply hollowed in the middle, tells of wit and liveliness; a fleshy protuding lower lip, of sensuality and indolence. The mouth should be of medium size; when it approaches either extreme it becomes animal in its symbolism. A somewhat large mouth is manly, and denotes energy; one somewhat small is feminine, and a sign of less power. There is the large thirsty mouth of the drunkard and the close pinched mouth of the miser. There is the scornful mouth, with its lower lip upraised and compressed upon the upper, and the long swollen upper lip which tells of a rough nature. There are the large, thin, indrawn lips of the dry passionless men of intellect, and the soft and beautifully chisselled, in those of refined sense and poetic nature.—There is the repulsive, cavernous hole, indicative of a vile nature, and the rose-bud mouth of beauty and innocence. But character is not always determined by size—it lurks in the corners—in the constant position of the angles which resemble the transient expressions whose meaning is always clear.—Portland Transcript.

THREATENINGS OF DISEASE.—All serious diseases give their far-off warnings. Intelligence and careful observation would make a doctor's calling almost a sinecure. A gradual failure of the memory is a sure indication of approaching bodily infirmity or decay. Another important fact is, if any set of muscles are unduly exercised, they will lose their power, so also, if any function of the mind or brain is unduly stimulated, the result is temporary prostration or permanent destruction, according to the intensity and duration of that stimulus. Thus it is, that the young, who learn by memory, if highly stimulated to learn, become precocious, and either die early, or disappoint the expectations of their friends by settling down into mortifying mediocrity. Hence

1. Let the young learn slowly.
2. Under intense bodily or mental application, if you find your memory failing you, as you value bodily health, and the mind itself, break away at once from all your engagements, and spend weeks togather in out-door recreations.—Hall's Journal.

BELIEF.—Whoever thinks worthily of God, is in danger of being styled an atheist, and whoever would frame his will to the rules of the Divine One, a visionary, an enthusiast, or a hypocrite. Fears and formularies, received by men from men, are called religion; belief and trust in Providence, truth, kindness, equity, mere things of this world. Oh! were they so, were they so indeed! then the confines of this world would touch, and almost be confounded with the others; and our hearts and imaginations might every day take exercise and repose there.—William Penn.

Newspapers and Periodicals.

Whose mind does not run back to the sunnier days of childhood at the repetition of the dear familiar lines:

"In works of labor or of skill,
I would be busy too;
For Satan finds some mischief still,
For idle hands to do."

And how much better, too, is the good old Presbyterian custom of causing children to commit to memory such plain and wholesome truths, than of lumbering up their brains with the dogged rhymes of Old Mother Goose, and such as

"There was an old woman she lived in a spoon,
And all she wanted [illegible] room."

Then again,

"O, Miss Mary, quite contrary,
How does your garden grow?"
"Silver bells and music shells
And cucumbers all in a row."

Eminently suggestive are such lines of—nonsense.

But what connection is there between newspapers and idle children? There is no connection whatever, and that is precisely the point we are trying to make. We wish to express it as a mature conviction of our own mind, that one of the best protections for our children against the temptatious of city and village life, is the habitual reading of a well-conducted family newspaper or periodical. In a reasonable time they will get to look for its coming, and feel the want of it, if it does not arrive at the usual time. Soon it will be a kind of necessity and rather than be without it they become willing to make sacrifices and self denials for the sake of saving any stray dime or half dime which may happen to come into their possession. Peanuts and gingerbread, monkey-shows and firecrackers, are vetoed, and the increasement of a quarter of a dollar to a half, and so on to the subscription price, is watched with an interest and a pleasure which few would imagine, and lo! the germs of an economy and self-denial are planted before we are aware of it, which will grow to health, and wealth, and position.

The moment any child has learned to save, that moment such a child is rendered safe for life; safe from the penitentiary, safe from her whose chambers go down to death. Not only so; during this time, the lessons learned from week to week, inculcated in short articles of precept and of fact—lessons in history, in finances, in morals, are indelibly impressed on the mind, and help to build up a character, which, with [illegible] like it, is to hold up the society of the rising generation. Such being the case, no [illegible] responsibilities to our common[illegible] the editorial profession; and glad are we, that to be well informed, to be educated, is the first, the essential requisite, in an editor; without it he cannot keep his head above the water. In law, physic, and divinity, an ignoramus may sail with the wind, may float on the tide of family, fortune, or party; but the only life boat of a living editor is actual intelligence—no sham can live an hour.

Be assured, reader, that the price of a periodical for each child in your family, who has entered the tenth year, is an investment which will yield a dividend of a million per cent. The very idea of taking a paper elevates a child, increases his self-respect, and that feeling of self importance which is the germ of manly and womanly dignity.

Truth, knowledge, has an infectious influence about it. The possession of one item of intelligence leads to the desire of knowing a kindred truth; this stimulates to investigation, when proper facilities, and encouragement, and aids are afforded; and all at once we find the child an investigator with an interest which insures its remembrance; and here we have a student in embryo—a self taught scholar, the very persons who, the world over, make the men of their time.

Give preference to the publication of the kind you want, which is nearest to you.—"Local papers," as they are called, are of more importance than is generally supposed when they are industriously edited. They keep you acquainted with the history of things around you, of the growth of your village or county, their improvements changes and the like. One of the most deeply interesting volumes in any man's library is a regular file of his village newspaper of twenty, of forty years agone.—What reminiscences—how glad are some! others, how sweetly sad are they! And what a photographic panorama is given of the whole past!

One paper well read, is more profitable than to have the skimmings of a dozen; which last gives a kind of general diffusive knowledge, which is the farthest possible from being practical, and practical knowledge is the great want of the age. It is the knowledge of minutiæ, which is remunerative. While we would confine each one to the actual reading of his own paper, we would allow him to tell its news to the others. Does not any one know what pleasure it affords to tell to another what is supposed to be new? The desire to tell would induce greater care in impressing upon the mind the particulars of what was intended to be communicated, and this would cultivate a habit of minuteness, and accuracy of narration, which gives to conversation its instructiveness and its charm.

Then again, a love of conversation is engendered, as to the useful and the true; a facility in expressing ideas grow up, which is invaluable; and we are never pained with the blunder of the pretender, "I have the idea, but can't express it satisfactorily." The fact is, an idea which can't find a medium for expression in words, is as empty as the head which holds it.

Suppose, then, a family should be of a size which would allow of the taking of some publication every day; we can scarcely imagine a more agreeable occupation for a winter's evening, than all gathering around the fire, and the father or mother, or eldest child taking the lead, to draw out the recipient of that day's paper with the various side-issues connected with it.

Parents of large towns and cities, it is a fault which has broken many hearts among you, that you failed to make home inviting to your children! and your sons sought amusement in the streets, or worse places; and your daughters in parties, with their frivolity, and heated, rooms, and late suppers, and thin shoes, and gossamer dress—and the son, where is he? the habitue of the club house or the billiard room, or lower down still: and your daughter—let the combination of the lily and the hectic tell.—Hall's Journal.

Too Expensive a Luxury.

In prudent Boston, says the Home Journal, for the last year, (and it was Leap Year too!) there have been twenty per cent. less of marriages than for the year before; and on this fact the Albany Evening Journal talks thus sensibly:

That shrine to love and marriage is crushingly draped with silks at from three dollars to fifteen dollars a yard—it is festooned with laces at prices to cause lockjaw to hear it—expensive diamond jewelry flashes through the meshes of the point d'Alencons at every part—silver plate paved thick upon leases of "genteel residences," supports the altar—and milliner's bills for every perchasable luxury and necessary, more terrible than the bills of vultures, litter the base of it, as votive leaves to the frost-spirit circle the oak in autumn. What effect has this profanation of the shrine of marriage on the young men of Boston, who would fain bring to it their personal offerings?

Those statisticians can see it and hear it. The current of masculine marriageable humanity sets right by without stopping.—Great sighs heaved from the bottom of prudent but hopeless hearts, are all that is given to Hymen. Young artists, young artisans, young doctors, merchants' clerks, lawyers of more youth than clientage, yet all out of debt, and earning comfortable and honorable subsistence for one, according to the scale of 1856, pass by quickly—alarmed by the evidences of the inexorable conditions attached to reputable marriage in these evil days of competition in social display.

Marriage is becoming a luxury to men in the United States. The cost of provisions, the wages of labor, the rent of dwellings, the cost of necessaries and of luxuries, added to the unrelenting pressure upon people in respectible society to dress richly and furnish showily, make the inevitable price of a family far out of reach of the salaries and incomes of most of the young. Of the effect on the morals and character of a State in which wedlock is prohibited it is unnecessary to enlarge. By reading or by travel, we are all familiar with it in France and in Austria. Prudence and custom forbid marriage in the former country, where there is not assured income sufficient to maintain its wants and social pretensions. In the latter, the armed law holds asunder from the relations of husband and wife, couples who do not possess property guaranties that their children shall not become a burden to the State. In all ranks of its society, income is the marriage-cement of love.

Marriage may be as effectually prohibited by the expenses of millinery-ware and house furnishing, as by a police regulation. If those modern Athenian statisticians will stand with their note-books beside their marriage altars for two years to come, they will have to record a steadily diminishing worship at the shrine. If old maidhood be, as many say, an evil, the penalty of general repudiation of cotton dress goods, and a scorn of gingham, will be paid in every house where there are daughters.—Does it not behoove all mothers—all good mothers—to imitate individually if not in concert, the wise conduct of the Belgic women of Brussels "upper tendom?" The "Retrenchment Society" has been organized to make economy fashionable. Its weekly meetings receive reports of superfluities dispensed with, and discuss the feasibility of further curtailments on household and personal expenses. Its members are mothers, and these their labors are for the purpose of saving marriage to their grown up daughters, by making it practicable for those young men whose capital is disproporiioned to their industry and integrity.

O for a restoration of gingham and prints! Is there no deliverance from the silken web of evil which French looms weave for us?

Washington and the Corporal.

During the American Revolution, it is said, the commander of a little squad was giving orders to those under him, relative to a log of timber which they were endeavoring to raise up to the top of some military works they were repairing. The timber went up with difficulty, and on this account the voice of the little great man was often heard, in regular vociferations of "Heave away! there she goes! heave ho! heave!"

An officer, not in the military costume, was passing, and asked the commander why he did not take hold and render a little aid?

The latter, astonished, turned round with all the pomp of an Emperor, and said, "Sir, I am a Corporal."

"You are, are you?" replied the officer; "I was not aware of that;" and taking off his hat and bowing, the officer said, "I ask your pardon, Mr. Corporal," and then dismounted, and lifted till the sweat stood in drops on his forehead.

When the work was finished, turning to the commander, he said. "Mr. Corporal, when you have another such job, and have not men sufficient, send for your Commander-in-chief, and I will come and help you a second time."

The corporal was thunderstruck. It was Washington who thus addressed him.

The Noble Revenge.

The coffin was a plain one—a poor miserable pine coffin. No flowers on its top, no lining of rose white satin for the pale brow, no smooth ribbons about the course shroud. The brown hair was laid decently back, but there was no crimped cap, with its neat tie beneath the chin. The sufferer from cruel poverty smiled in her sleep; she had found bread, rest and health.

"I want to see my mother," sobbed a poor child as the city undertaker screwed down the top.

"You can't—get out of the way, boy; why don't somebody take the brat?"

"Only let me see her one moment," cried the hapless, hopeless orphan, clutching the side of the charity box; and as he gazed into that rough face, anguished tears streamed rapidly down the cheek on which no childish bloom ever lingered. Oh! it was pitiful to hear him cry, "Only once; let me see my mother only once!"

Quickly and brutally the hard hearted monster struck the boy away, so that he reeled with the blow. For a moment the boy stood panting with grief and rage; his blue eye distended, his lips sprang apart, a fire glittered through his veins, as he raised his puny arm, and with a most unchildish accent, screamed, "When I am a man, I'll kill you for that."

"There was a coffin and a heap of earth" between the mother and the poor forsaken child; and a monument stronger than granite built in his boy heart to the memory of a heartless deed.

The court house was crowded to suffocation.

"Does any one appear as this man's counsel?" asked the judge.

There was a silence when he finished, until, with lips tightly pressed together, a look of strange intelligence, blended with a haughty reserve, upon his handsome features, a young man stepped forward with a firm tread and kindling eye, to plead for the erring and the friendless. He was a stranger, but from his first sentence there was silence. The splendor of his genius entranced, convinced. The man who could not find a friend was acquitted

"May God bless you, sir, I cannot."

"I want no thanks," replied the stranger with icy coldness.

"I—I believe you are unknown to me."

"Man! I will refresh your memory.—Twenty years ago you struck a broken-hearted boy away from his mother's poor coffin I was that poor, miserable boy."

The man turned livid.

"Have you rescued me then, to take my life?"

"No I have a sweeter revenge; I have [illegible]d the life of the man whose brutal deed [illegible] Go! and remember the tears of a friendless child.

The man bowed his head in shame, and went out from the presence of a magnanimity as grand to him as it was incomprehensible.

COLD.

For every mile that we leave the surface of our earth, the temperature falls five degrees. At forty-five miles' distance from the globe we get beyond the atmosphere, and enter, strictly speaking, into the regions of space, whose temperature is 225 degrees below zero, and here cold reigns in all its power. Some idea of this intense cold may be formed by stating that the greatest cold observed from the Arctic Circles is from 40 to 60 degrees below zero, and here many surprising effects are produced. In the chemical laboratory the greatest cold that we can produce is about 150 degrees below zero. At this temperature carbonic gas becomes a solid substance, like snow. If touched, it produces just the same effect on the skin as a red hot cinder; it blisters the finger like a burn. Quicksilver, or mercury, freezes at 40 degrees below zero; that is, 72 degrees below the temperature at which water freezes. The solid mercury may then be treated as other metals, hammered into sheets, or made into spoons: such spoons would, however, melt in water as warm as ice. It is pretty certain that every liquid and gas that we are acquainted with, would become solid if exposed to the regions of space. The gas we light our streets with would appear like wax; oil would in reality be as "hard as a rock;" pure spirit, which we have never yet solidified, would appear like a block of transparent crystal; hydrogen gas would become quite solid and resemble a metal; we should be able to turn butter in a lathe like a piece of ivory; and the fragrant odors of flowers would have to be made hot before they would yield perfume. These are a few of the astonishing effects of cold.—Septimus Presse.

Rural Improvements—Winter Suggestions.

A great many who admit the comforts and advantages of ornamental planting and other improvements about their residences, "do no get time to attend to them." It is true that these improvements are easily made and cost little money, but every moment of the farmer's time, from early spring till freezing up at the close of autumn, seems to be required in the planting, cultivating and harvesting crops, and the other innumerable occupations of the farm. In the winter he has plenty of time to plan his improvements, but every one takes it for granted that this is not the time for planting trees, when the soil is chained fast in ice. This, however, is a very mistaken opinion. For the removal of trees, no better time can be found; while it possesses peculiar advantages. Large trees, with balls of earth, may be transplanted much the best when they can be drawn with sleds or stone-boats on the snow. We have never found a better time for the removal of evergreen trees than winter. There is generally a sad omission of these in planting of most residences; for while they possess all the beauty of other trees in summer, they add in the highest degree to a cheerful appearance in winter, and are of eminent utility in sheltering from wintry winds. We have heard and read many discourses on the successful removal of evergreen trees; and a great many modes for success have been prescribed. But after long years of experience, we have found the observance of one single rule to be always followed with success, and its neglect with almost as certain failure; whether the operation is performed in autumn, winter or spring, or even at midsummer. It is worth more than all other rules put together. This is, as we have mentioned on former occasions, to remove the roots with a large portion of the earth upon them.—If they are torn out of the soil and laid bare, even for a minute only, there is but a small chance of the tree surviving; but if the earth in which the roots lie is carried off with them, it is nearly impossible to kill the tree, no matter what kind of neglect or abuse it may receive. The Balsam Fir is one of the most easily transplanted of evergreens; under very careful management it will often live even if the roots are denuded, but with the Hemlock, White Pine, and some others, it is next to im[illegible] circumstances is when the ground is but little frozen, and there is plenty of snow to favor the removal. They are then easily dug, and if heavy, may be easily slid by means of draught-ropes attached to horses, in an erect posture up an inclined plane, made of plank, to the sled. Should the earth, in most places, be deeply frozen, it will often happen that places may be found under snow-drifts, thick leaves, or in the depths of sheltered woods, where there will be little difficulty from frozen earth.

These remarks apply mainly to trees growing in the borders of woods or in other natural localities. Cultivated in nurseries, and taken when small or of moderate size, this difficulty of removal is greatly lessened.

Now, will not such of our readers as may find it practicable, undertake this business at once, and not wait for a more convenient season? We have known an instance where a few dollars expenditure in labor of this kind has been repaid more than a thousand per cent. in saving fuel, by sheltering from winds, to say nothing of the comfort and satisfaction which every member of the family must enjoy, when the dwelling is surrounded by these perpetual comforts and sources of pleasure.

Nothing adds more to the convenience and finished appearance, when the cost and labor is taken into account, than handsomely laid out and neatly kept gravel walks. Where gravel can be obtained within a few miles, it may be very easily carried on sleds. It should be deposited as near as may be to the place where it is wanted; and if placed on a temporary floor or platform of plank, it may be more easily shovelled into the wheelbarrow or hand cart, when applied to the walk in the spring.

Gardens may be often permanently improved in two ways. If too clayey, by the addition of sand, and if too light, by an admixture of clay. Winter affords a good opportunity for making these additions from the sand hole or clay bed, where such can be found. Although less immediately striking in their results than the application of manures, yet, when once made, these improvements are perpetual, and unlike manure, do not pass from the soil in a few years. Besides, a very light soil will not hold manure unless some clay is added; and a strong clay cannot be advantageously worked, unless made more friable by a mixture of sand or other loosening substance.

We hope our readers will take advantage of these suggestions during the present season, where circumstances require or admit of it.—[Country Gentleman.

CORN COBS.

The truth will soon out, and farmers who have been seized with such a terrible fit of economy, in the use of corn cobs, will have to yield to the light of common sense and reason. Dr. Charles T. Jackson, of Boston, informs the Patent Office people that he has analyzed the corn cob, and finds that it contains 4 1-2 parts in one hundred of nutritive matter, consisting of gum, starch and dextrine. From this it appears that it is scarcely more value to consume as food than as fuel. This analysis being correct, no good farmer can afford to spend his time in soaking and salting and grinding corn cobs any more than he could afford to grind sugar maple trees into saw dust, and feed it to his cattle. Better, by far, use the time in sowing corn broad cast, or in drills, for fodder, with an absolute certainty of good results in feeding, than to resort to doubtful expedients to economise food.—Scientific Farmer.

From the Pittsburgh Chistian Advocate.

Mrs. Fannie Bliss.

The subject of this notice, was born near Enniskillen, in Ireland, on the 30th day of September, 1823. She was the only daughter of John and Christian Moffiitt, and had but one brother. When Fannie was thirteen years old she came with her parents to this country, and settled in Sharon, Beaver County, where she lived till August 15th, 1854, when she was united in marraige to J. G. Bliss, Esq., from which time till her death they lived in Beaver.

Fannie was blessed with the careful training of a pious mother; and from her early childhood she attended regularly to the means of grace, such as secret prayer, reading the Scriptures, the prayer and class meetings, and the public ordinances of God's house. When about ten years of age she obtained the witness of her adoption into Christ's family, and she ever afterwards gave satisfactory evidence of the soundness of her conversion, by her consistant Christian conduct. For a number of years before her marriage she was one of our most diligent and efficient teachers in the Sunday school; and after her marriage, as far as her health would permit, she was always found at her post in the Sunday school and in her place in the church. The Sabbath previous to her death she was at church in fine health, and on the Wednesday following, being the 24th of December, 1856, her blood washed spirit took its flight to the regions of the blessed on high, leaving her infant son to the care of her bereaved and sorrowing husband, and leaving her aged parents and only brother, with a large circle of relations, to mourn over the loss they have sustained by the death of one so worthy of their affections. But their cup of sorrow is mingled with the consoling reflection that their Fannie "is not dead, but sleepeth," and that the time is coming when all that sleep in Jesus shall come forth with him to the enjoyment of a life that shall never end, and a glory that shall never fade away. May the Lord by his grace prepare us all to be sharers in that glory! Amen.

What a Long Tail our Cat's Got.

A. K. Marshall, Member of Congress from Kentucky, thinks newspapers "contemptible things." Mr. Campbell, of Ohio thinks that charges which at best "but come from a newspaper," or merely from some "Editor or penny a liner," or are made by a writer through the medium of "manufactured rags and lamp black and oil," are not worthy of investigation, but when one of their own body of immaculate, dignified, respectable, Congressmen, repeat the charge, then, indeed, it should be investigated. What do not these very high toned Congressmen owe to newspapers? What would most of them be were there no newspapers? And will these gentleman bear in mind their opinion of Editors and newspapers when favors are hereafter asked?

This ill tempered out burst reminds us of a story which we may have told, but which will bear repetition.

A man in one of the counties of Northern New York was very anxious to be elected Sheriff, and although not just the man politician whose influence was deemsd all sufficient, but even with that, the candidate failed an election.

After his defeat, the unsuccessful candidate, met his hard working friend and was very petulent under his defeat, even finding fault with his warm friends who had done their best to get him elected. This abused man smarting under treatment from a man not really worthy the labor and exertion made for him; turned indignantly on the would be Sheriff and said, Mr, C——if the Almighty had done one half as much for you as I have, you would now be Sheriff of the universe. Will our snappish Congressman apply the moral.—Cleveland Herald.

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

The Republican State Convention, for the nomination of candidates for Governor and other State officers, will be held at Harrisburg, on Wednesday the 25th of March 1857. Each District will elect Delegates in the usual manner, equal in number to its representation in the two Houses of the State Legislature; and no person will be entitled, by substitution, to represent a district in which he does not reside

☞The communication of "A Merchant," has unavoidably been crowded out of this weeks paper. It will receive attention next week.

☞William McCalister, Jr., has again laid us under obligations to him, for late Louisville and Cincinnatti papers.

COUNTY AUDITORS—Our Board of County Auditors, which has been in session, for the last two or three weeks adjourned finally on Monday evening last.

GOVERNOR OF MAINE.—In consequence of the necessary withdrawal from the Gubernatorial chair of Hannibal Hamlin, who has been elected to the lung term in the United States Senate, Hon. Joseph Williams, of Agusta, President of the Senate, will become the acting Governor of Maine after the 4th of March next.

SUPPER.—Our readers will not forget the supper for the benefit of the widows and orphans, of Beaver Lodge I, O, O, F, under the Old Fellows Hall, in Bridgewater on this (Wednesday) evening, at 7 P. M. We learn that extensive arrangements have been made, for the accommodation of guests; and from the well known energy of the persons, who have the affair in hand, the supper will doubtless be an excellent one, and the occasion one of good feeling and brotherly love.

"HOAXED."—The marriages announced in our last paper, as having occurred in the vicinity of Darlington on the 30th inst. we are informed by relatives of the parties, have not taken place. They were enclosed to us in a letter, post marked "Elder's Mill," with the signature "J. R. Cline" appended; and we regarding it as all right, published them without further thought As soon however, as we learned that a trick had been practiced upon us, we with the aid of a couple of friends, traced the letter back to its author, whose name is now witheld only on account of the sorrow he expresses, for his unjustifiable conduct. We trust that this circumstance may teach him a lesson that he will not soon forget.

AN ENERGETIC GOVERNOR.—Governor Newell was compelled to walk from his residence, in Allentown, N. J, to Trenton, a distance of twelve miles, on foot in order to reach the capitol in time to be inaugurated, as the weather forbid travelling either in sleighs or on horseback. He was accompanied on his journey by John Vandyke, Esq., of New Brunswick, who happened to be at his house at the time.—Just as he was starting a man arrived at his house, requesting him (he being a physician) to visit professionally, a sick child. Though this obliged him to go a considerable distance out of the way, he promptly consented to do so. It will hardly be said of him "He has no motive power."

AFFAIRS AT WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.

The social and political community here has received a shock in the sudden death of Mr. Sumner's assailant, Preston S. Brooks of S. C. This gentleman died at his hotel on Tuesday evening, after a brief illness, which was at first only a severe cold, but finally took the form of croup, and this carried him off while apparently in full vigor. This occurrence will give rise to a world of moralizing throughout the country and many will think they see the finger of God in the visitation; and certainly it is not a little marvelous in our eyes, that, while Sumner has lingered so long and vibrated as it were between life and death, with public attention drawn to him everywhere, Brooks has been quietly taken off by a child's disease. It certainly seems like a realization of scripture—"vengeance is mine saith the Lord." Mr. Brooks' funeral was solemnized with the usual Congressional pomp. Mr. Keitt pronounced his eulogy in the House, and Toombs in the Senate; the latter was so much effected that he was compelled to bring his remarks to an abrupt close.—The ceremony was rendered imposing by the presence of President Pierce and Cabinet, Mr. Buchanan, President elect, together with the Judges of the Supreme Court, who occupied seats in the area in front of the Speaker's chair. Mr. Brooks was quite a young man, and leaves a widow and six or seven children. This will be a sad bereavement to them, and the more so that they were totally ignorant of the impending blow; there having been no mail communication with the South during the period of his sickness. Mrs. B. is represented by those who know her well as being a very amiable lady.

The Committee of Investigation into charges of corruption of members is still engaged in its work of labor in vain.—From all I can learn very little corruption will be disclosed, and perhaps much less really exists than the public have been led to believe. The law for punishing by fine and imprisonment such as refuse to testify when summoned before a committee of either House, is likely to exercise a salutary influence hereafter, although I cannot commend the manner in which it was hurried through the forms of legislation in this particular instance. Mr. Simonton the correspondent of the N. Y. Times, is still in the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms, and appears likely to be the first victim of the law whose enactment he provoked.

The Tariff is the subject at present under discussion in the House, but there is so much diversity of sentiment, even among members of the same party upon this question, that I am now persuaded, contrary to previously expressed opinions, that nothing will be done with it at this session, unless a special enactment be excepted in reference to duties upon sugar, and molasses. It is enough to make one's head giddy to look over the calendars of business, and see what a mass of both public and private there is to be disposed of, and reflect how little time remains between now and the 4th of March. To undertake to settle a complicated question like the Tariff at such a time seems to be highly unreasonable.

The principal avenue here, that leading from the Capitol to the Pesident's house, has presented an animated scene of gaiety for some time past, in the numerous merry sleigh riders who have thronged it day and night. The fast horses, and jingling bells, and joyous riders bring to mind what we read of in the Italian Carnivals. The weather seems likely to change soon now, and appearances, as I close this, favor a thaw.

POLITICAL CHANGES.

The changes which time effect are very great, and not unfrequently very rapid.—A few years ago, the Democracy of New York divided—the late lamented Silas Wright, Preston King, the Evening Post, and John A. King—leading off the conservative anti-slavery portion, and forming what was known as the "Soft Shell" party; while the pro slavery portion under the lead of Daniel S. Dickinson, Capt. Rynders, and Mike Walsh appropriated to themselves the cognomen and were called "Hard Shells." Thus they stood. The former endeavoring in vain to bring back the National Democracy, to the original land-marks of the founders of the Government; and the latter with whip and spur, [illegible] exclusive care and control of the South. On the passage of the Kansas-Nebraska Bill, the two wings seperated permanently, and on Saturday last the telegraph brought us the pleasing intelligence that, that lofty statesman, and earnest champion of equal rights, PRESTON KING was nominated in Legislative caucus as the Republican candidate for U. S. Sentor from New York. He is doubtless, ere this elected.

About the time the feud commenced in New York, a schism occurred in the Democratic ranks in Illinois, which caused the party to divide. One branch was pro-slavery—the other anti-slavery. On the passage of the Nebraska Bill the two joined issue, and LYMAN TRUMBULL, the leader of the latter was returned to the Senate of the United States.

Two years ago, HANNIBAL HAMLIN, of Maine, a Democratic Senator in the true sense of the word, a man of lofty standing at home, a statesman of ripe experience, and confessedly the leader of his party in his state, went from Washington, sounded the alarm to his friends in Maine, and gave notice if the National Democratic party, engaged in the scheme of extending slavery, he would array himself against it. He arrayed himself against it, became Governor of his native State in opposition to it, and two weeks ago, received its vote through the Legislature to represent it in the federal Senate for six years.

Judge DOOLITTLE, of Wisconsin, recently elected by the Republicans to represent that State in the Senate also comes from the Democratic ranks, and is said to be a close reasoner, a ready debater, and a man of remarkable strength of character.

Six years since, the State of Massachusetts was strongly Whig, and so had been perhaps for a quarter of a century before; but the alleged submission of their great statesman, Daniel Webster, to the demands of the south, aroused a feeling in the "old Bay State," that was unlooked for by the actor at Washington. Mr. Webster became aware of the storm, but sheltered himself from it by accepting the post of Secretary of State. The Democrats of Massachusetts then occupied the present Republican ground, and the Legislative members of that party, proposed to unite with the Free Soil members, to elect a Senator, whose position against the extension of Slavery was unequivocal and satisfactory. And then was begun a contest, which was carried on amid tremendous excitement, from the 1st of January 1851, to the 24th of April following, and on the latter day Chas. Sumner was elected by a majority of one vote over Robert C. Winthrop the Whig candidate; and from a Boston paper now before us we learn that three of the members who voted for Mr. Sumner at that time, were delegates to the late Cincinnati Convention, and two others now hold offices under President Pierce. Six years have passed, and what a change Mr. Sumner was then an avowed opponent of the extension of Slavery—he is the same now. Then he was supported by the Democracy of his State—now he is opposed by it. Then he was employed by them to plead the cause of Kansas—now he is reviled for doing it. Then, unbidden would they have rallied to his defence while in the discharge of his duty—now with the remark, "he is served right," they see him struck down in the Senate, perhaps to rise no more in his strength. But the changes in Mr. Sumner are also marked changes, but different from the changes of his Democratic supporters. Mr. Sumner who was then a srtanger to public life, unknown to political fame, and known only as a profound lawyer, and a devoted scholar, whose polished manners and graceful eloquence had reached where the noise of our political warfares had never been heard, has now become as famous in the political as he had before been in the polished and classic world.

His appearance in the Senate was marked by a loftiness of purpose that draw to himself the taunts and jeers of the Southern Senators, and those who sympathized with them; but having an eye to the business of his constituents he was heedless for years of the obloquy that was heaping upon him, and then, when forbearance was no longer a virtue, he met the chiefs of his assailants in debate, and with their own weapons, and in a single speech "vanquished them all." Such a man is Charles Sumner and such has been his career, and such the estimation in which he is held by the people of Massachusetts, that on Friday the 9th of January, the House of Representatives gave him 333 votes, of 345, as its choice for six years more in the United States Senate; and on Tuesday the 13th the Senate voted for him unanimously.

☞The editor of the Star asks us to publish an article in his last issue, in reply to a statement made by the official members of the Bridgewater M. E. Church. We must decline the request, for several reasons, two of which we will state. First the attack made by the editor of the Star upon Mr. Rich, the pastor of the Bridgewater Church, and in whose defence the statement of the official members was volunteered never appeared in our paper, and as a matter of course the majority of our readers know nothing of its nature. To publish then, the article we are requested to publish would create the impression on the minds of those that did not recur to preceeding papers, that the official members of the Bridgewater Church had assailed Mr. McGregor, when in fact they were only repelling charges that the Star [illegible] preferred against their pastor. And secondly, we are confident that after time and reflection, Mr. McGregor, will not only approve of our decission, but will keenly regret that his "defence" even appeared in his own paper.

For the Argus.

Messrs Editors.—Your proverbial courtesy, as well as the fairness which you exhibited toward members of our party during the late canvass, emboldens me to ask for a little space in your columns. I wish a sentence or two to go to the public in behalf of the Democratic party of our county.

As a Democrat of twenty years standing I cannot and I am satisfied that three-fourths of the members of our party do not endorse the reckless conduct of the editor who has the control of the only paper of our political faith in the county. The public must not then judge the party by its supposed organ. There are doubtless members of our organization (and the same may be said of all organizations) that enjoy such recklessness as the editor of the Star exhibits; and who delight in the low personal assaults that are made upon private individuals in his paper; but the large majority of our party look with pain and apprehension upon such conduct; and hope that the time is not far distant when the paper of our party will be in more responsible and discrete hands.

Feb. Appointments.

DR. H. TUBBS,

Will be at his room, Bridgewater, Lehmer's Hotel, Monday, February 16, 1857.

For consultation upon all diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Heart, Liver, Stomach, Bowels, Kidneys and Spleen; also Dropsy, Gravel, Rheumatism, Nervousness, Debility, Dyspepsia, Female diseases, Ague and Fever, Fits, Impurities of the blood, Eruptions, Cancers, Ulcers, and all other varieties of long standing complaints, both external and internal.

For some ten years Dr. T. has devoted his entire time to chronic diseases, treating thousands annually, many of whom had exhaused every other resource within reach. In no case are mineral or other poisons employed, nor does he make sick to make well, or tear down, to built up again. The medicines can be taken with safety by the most delicate, and patiens may remain at home, and continue with prudence their ordinary diet and excercise. Many have recovered under the treatment after friends and physicians had given up all hope, the indisputable evidence of which can always be furnished. Invalids, however reduced or despairing, are invited to call, and may be assured that no encouragement will be given or expense incurred, without a corresponding prospect of recovery.

Persons afflicted with Cancerous or Scrofula Tumors or Ulcers, should read the following:

Townsend, Huron Co., O., Oct., '54

Dr. H. Tubbs—Sir:—As I have received very great help from your treatment, and notice similar results upon several of my friends, I feel it a duty to send you my name for public reference.

A tumor became noticeable in my right breast nine years ago. For three years it caused but little attention, but subsequently it grew faster and caused me a great deal of suffering. The increase of size at last became very great; the entire side was largely swollen, and the right arm so affected as to be nearly useless. We sought the advice and aid of many physicians, who termed it a scrofular or cancerous tumor. Notwithstanding all their efforts to reduce the pain, it became intolerable and unceasing. I was urged to have the entire breast, removed with the knife, and a day was appointed for the purpose; but my positive refusal to submit, prevented the operation. I was able, with difficulty, to walk.—Under your treatment, the pain has been overcome, the tumor materially reduced, and the arm fully restored. We had tried many remedies before, but the effects of none can compare with this. My general health has been improved nearly as much as the side. It is now over a year since the improvement took place.

Yours, &c., Mrs. GEO. TILLINGHAST.

Prospectus for 1857.

THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Established August 4th, 1821.

THE publishers of this old and firmly established paper take pleasure in calling the attention of the public to their programme for the coming year. Surfeited with politics, the claims of literature will be more than ever appreciated by the reading world. We have therefore already made arrangements with the following brilliant list of writers:

William Howitt, (of England,) Alice Cary, T. S. Arthur, Mrs. Southworth, Augustine Duganne, Mrs. M. A. Denison, the author of "Zillah," &c.

We design commencing in the first number in January next, the following original Novelet:

Tallengetta, or the Squatter's Home.

By William Howitt, author of "Rural Life of England," "Homes of the Poets," &c., &c.

This is a story of Australian Life, Mr. Howitt having visited Australia expressly with the object of acquainting himself with the novel and romantic aspects under which nature and society present themselves in that singular region.

The following Novelets will then be given, though probably not in the exact order here mentioned:

The Story of a Country Girl.—By Alice Cary. An original Novelet, written expressly for the Post.

The Withered Heart.—An original Novelet, written expressly for the Post, by T. S. Arthur.

Lighthouse Island.—An original Novelet, by the author of "My Confession," "Zillah, or the Child of Medium," &c.

The Quaker's Protege.—An original novelet, by Mrs. Mary A. Denison, author of "Mark, the Sexton," "Home Pictures," &c.

The Raid of Burgundy—A Tale of the Swiss Cantons. An original Novelet, by Augustine Duganne, author of "The Lost of the Wilness."

We have also the promise of a short and condensed NOVELET, by Mrs. Southworth, to run through about six or eight numbers of the Post.

☞ In addition to the above list of contributions, we design continuing the usual amount of Foreign Letters, Original Sketches, Choice Selections from all sources, Agricultural Articles, General News, Humorous Anecdotes, View of the Produce and Stock Markets, the Philadelphia Retail Markets, Bank Note List, Editorials, &c., &c., our object being to give a complete record, as far as our limits will admit, of the Great World.

Engravings.—In the way of Engravings, we generally present two weekly—one of an instructive, and the other of a humorous nature.

The postage on the Post to any part of the U. States, paid quarterly or yearly in advance, at the office where it is received, is only 26 cents a year.

AYER'S PILLS,

A new and singularly successful remedy for the cure of all Bilious diseases—Costiveness, Indigestion, Jaundice, Dropsy, Rheumatism, Fevers, Gout, Humors, Nervousness, Irritability, Inflammations, Headache, Pains in the Breast, Side, Back, and Limbs, Female Complaints, &c. &c. Indeed, very few are the diseases in which a Purgative Medicine is not more or less required, and much sickness and suffering might be prevented, if a harmless but effectual Cathartic were more freely used. No person can feel well while a costive habit of body prevails; besides it soon generates serious and often fatal diseases, which might have been avoided by the timely and judicious use of a good purgative. This is alike true of Colds, Feverish symptoms, and Bilious derangements. They all tend to become or produce the deep seated and formidable distempers which load the hearses all over the land. Hence a reliable family physic is of the first importance to the public health, and this Pill has been perfected with consummate skill to meet that demand. An extensive trial of its virtues by Physicians, Professors, and Patients, has shown results surpassing any thing hitherto known of any medicine. Cures have been effected beyond belief, were they not substantiated by persons of such exalted position and character as to forbid the suspicion of untruth.

Among the many eminent gentlemen who have testified in favor of these Pills, we may mention:

DR. A. A. HAYES, Analytical Chemist, of Boston, and State Assayer of Massachusetts, whose high professional character is endorsed by the HON. EDWARD EVERETT, Senator of the U. S.

ROBERT C. WINTHROP, Ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives.

ABBOTT LAWRENCE, Minister Plen. to England.

† JOHN B. FITZPATRICK, Cath. Bishop of Boston.

Also, DR. J. R. CHILTON, Practical Chemist, of New York City, endorsed by

HON. W. L. MARCY, Secretary of State.

WM. B. ASTOR, the richest man in America.

S. LELAND & Co., Prop'rs of the Metropolitan Hotel, and others.

Did space permit, we could give many hundred certificates, from all parts where the Pills have been used, but evidence even more convincing than the experience of eminent public men is found in their effects upon trial.

These Pills, the result of long investigation and study, are offered to the public as the best and most complete which the present state of medical science can afford. They are compounded not of the drugs themselves, but of the medicinal virtues only of Vegetable remedies, extracted by chemical process in a state of purity, and combined together in such a manner as to insure the best results. This system of composition for medicines has been found in the Cherry Pectoral and Pills both, to produce a more efficient remedy than had hitherto been obtained by any process. The reason is perfectly obvious. While by the old mode of composition, every medicine is burdened with more or less of acrimonious and injurious qualities, by this each individual virtue only that is desired for the curative effect is present. All the inert and obnoxious qualities of each substance employed are left behind, the curative virtues only being retained. Hence it is self-evident the effects should prove as they have proved more purely remedial, and the Pills a surer, more powerful antidote to disease than any other medicine known to the world.

As it is frequently expedient that my medicine should be taken under the counsel of an attending Physician, and as he could not properly judge of a remedy without knowing its composition, I have supplied the accurate Formulæ by which both my Pectoral and Pills are made to the whole body of Practitioners in the United States and British American Provinces. If, however, there should be any one who has not received them, they will be promptly forwarded by mail to his address.

Of all the Patent Medicines that are offered, how few would be taken if their composition was known! Their life consists in their mystery. I have no mysteries.

The composition of my preparations is laid open to all men, and all who are competent to judge on the subject freely acknowledge their convictions of their intrinsic merits. The Cherry Pectoral was pronounced by scientific men to be a wonderful medicine before its effects were known. Many eminent Physicians have declared the same thing of my Pills, and even more confidently, and are willing to certify that their anticipations were more than realized by their effects upon trial.

They operate by their powerful influence on the [illegible] the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting [illegible] the first origin of disease. Being sugar wrapped they are pleasant to take, and being purely vegetable, no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

Glad News.

FULL OF HOPE TO THE AFFLICTED AND SUFFERING!

Many of the thousand portals of Death may be closed, and life made happier, and more comfortable to thousands who are now in danger. Doubtless this world contains many a balm to soothe its physical woes and cure its diseases. Among those in prominent rank, stands

BOWMAN'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND,

A SAFE and speedy cure for Consumption, not only in those milder forms of Throat and Lung Diseases, such as colds, coughs, quinsey, difficulty of breathing, bronchitis, Ministers' sore throat, weakness of the chest, asthma, inward ulcer, spitting of blood, influenza, croup, whooping-cough, pain in the breast and side, hoarseness, catarrh and catarrhl affections, inflammation of the lungs, bleeding of the lungs, and such like. But its superior excellence is seen and tested in the more advanced affections of the lungs. For the truth of the above statement and the efficiency of the preparations as an antidote, we refer the public to the following testimonials:

Language is scarcely strong enough to tell the great power of this WONDERFUL DISCOVERY!

The doubting may try and be convinced.

The Proprietors point to the following bona fide certificates with confidence on the community; they are but samples of the many hundreds of testimonials in our possession:

Philadelphia, Aug. 15. 1856.—Last spring, while in Pittsburgh, I had a bad cold and cough, which troubled me much, and a friend of mine gave me a bottle of Bowman's Vegetable Compound for diseases of the throat and lungs, which I commenced taking, and found relief almost immediately. I had taken many things for cough and hoarseness, but never got anything to help me as it has done. I believe it to be the best antidote for coughs and hoarseness that is out, and cheerfully recommend it to the public. THOS. H. STOCKTON.

Pastor 1st Prot. Meth. Church.

From Judge Vanhorn, of the District Court at Cincinnatia.

Cincinnati, May 4, 1856.—I have used Bowman's Vegetable Compound for bronchitis and cough, and believe it to be the best medicine out for those diseases, and the only one I ever got to give me any permanent relief. It will cure. I recommend it to the public as an honest and efficient medicine, and will perform what it is published to do W. VANHORN.

TO THE PUBLIC.

I have used Bowman's Vegetable Compound in my family, for coughs, colds and Ministers' sore throat and believe it to be the best thing that I ever got for those complaints, and cheerfully recommend it to the public.

REV. J. GASTON,
Pastor of the Clinton st. M. E. Church,
June 10, 1855. Cincinnati.

Here is one from the old pioneer Methodist preacher of Ohio, Rev. J. B. Finley.

I believe Bowman's Vegetable Compound to be the best remedy for Diseased Throat and Lungs, of the day. I have tested it, and found it to be the best of all the popular remedies I ever tried, and I have tried very many. I recommend it to the public. Try it and you will be convinced of its superiority.

Cincinnati July 1856, Rev. J. B. FINLEY.

Hear what the celebrated Dr. Peck says:

New York, May 12, 1856.—I have used Bowman's Vegetable Compound for coughs and hoarseness in speaking; and believe it to be the best preparation for Throat and Lung complaints I ever got; and I recommend it to the public speaker and singer, as well as those afflicted with Lung diseases. J. T. PECK.

[Extract from a letter.]

"Bowman's Vegetable Compound contains a virtue which is not possessed by any other popular medicine in my knowledge. It does not only smoothe the disease over, giving it only temporary relief (like most of patent medicines,) but it commences at tee root of the disease, and performs a perfect cure.

The Greatest Medical Discovery OF THE AGE.

DR. KENNEDY, of Roxbury has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common pimple.

He has tried it in over 1100 cases, and never failed except in two cases. (both thunder humor.) He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its virtue, all within twenty miles of Boston.

Two bottles are warranted to cure a nursing sore mouth.

One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of Pimples on the face.

Two or three bottles will clear the system of Biles.

Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth and stomach.

Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst cases of Erysipelas.

One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the Eyes.

Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the ears and bloches among the hair.

Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers,

One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.

Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.

Two to three bottles are warranted to cure he most desperate ase of rheumatism.

Two or three bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.

Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of Scrofula.

A benifit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.

Reader, I peddled over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effect of it in every case. So sure as water will extinguish fire, so sure will this cure humor. I never sold a bottle of it but that sold another; after trial it always speaks for itself. There are two things about this herb that appear to me, surprising; first that it grows in our pastures, in some places quite plentiful, and yet its value has never been known until I discovered it in 1846—second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.

In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1853, I peddled it and sold about six bottles per day—In April 1854, I sold over one thousand bottles per day of it.

Some of the wholesale Druggists who have been in business twenty and thirty years, say that nothing in the annals of patent medicines was ever like it. There is a universal praise of it from all quarters.

In my own practice I always kept it strictly for humors—but since its introduction as a general family medicine, great and wonderful virtues have been found in it that I never suspected.

Several cases of epileptic fits—a desease which was always considered incurable, have been cured by a few bottles. O, what a mercy if it will prove effectual in all cases of that awful malady—there are but few who have seen more of it than I have.

I know of several cases of Dropsy, all of them aged people cured by it. For the various diseases of the Liver, Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Asthma, Fever Ague, Pain in the Side, Diseases of the Spine, and particularly in diseases of the Kidneys &c., the discovery has done more good than any medicine ever known.

No change of diet ever necessary—eat the best you get and enough of it.

DIRECTIONS—Adults one table spoonful per day—Children over ten years dessert spoonfull. Children from five to eight years, tea spoonful. As no directions can be applicable to all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day. Manufactured by
